The California Kid DVD

In 1971 when Pete Chapouris started building his chopped '34 Ford 3-window coupe he had no idea that the car would end up on the November 1973 cover of Rod & Custom Magazine. He also had no idea that movie producer Howie Horowitz had spotted the magazine and would seek out Pete's creation to star, along with Martin Sheen, in the 1974 made for TV movie "The California Kid". The special SO-CAL Speed Shop edition of the DVD is personally autographed by Pete; it also includes his own written account of the car's history.

DUST PROTECTION

California Car Cover

The California Car Cover Company specialises in custom-fit car covers. As pioneers in the industry, they have dedicated a great deal of time researching exactly what automotive enthusiasts seek in a car cover. Factors such as weather conditions, ease-of-use, paint and upholstery protection and resistance to water, sun and wind come into account. As a result the needs of car cover consumers who want to protect their car, truck, street rod or SUV are fully met. Our covers are simply the best:

- Guaranteed to never scratch.
- We can custom make covers for any application.
- Elastic tensioners are sewn-in front and rear to facilitate a snug fit.
- Fabrics are precision-cut on computer-controlled equipment for optimum fit.
- We provide provisions for cable locks for added security.
- Extra wide 60" material used to reduce the number of seams required.
- Seams are overlapped and double-stitched for optimum seal and durability.
- Materials are tightly woven to prevent shrinkage from wet/dry cycles.
- Permeable fabrics treated with 3M Scotchgard for water repellency.

CONVERSION FORMULAS

These are the basic conversion formulas. To convert the other way simply divide instead of multiplying. For example, to convert inches to millimetres multiply by 25.4 and to convert millimetres to inches divide by 25.4.

INCHES TO MILLIMETRES:

$$MM = \text{Inches} \times 25.4$$

FEET TO METRES:

$$\text{Feet} = \text{Metres} \times .3048$$

MILES TO KILOMETRES:

$$KM = \text{Miles} \times 1.609$$

CUBIC INCHES TO CUBIC CENTIMETRES:

$$CC = \text{In}^3 \times 16.387$$

LITRES TO US GALLONS:

$$L = \text{Gal} \times 3.7854$$

HORSEPOWER TO KILOWATTS:

$$HP = KW \times 1.34$$

FOOT POUNDS TO NEWTON METRES:

$$NM = \text{Lb/Ft} \times 1.356$$

POUNDS PER HOUR TO HORSEPOWER:

$$HP = \text{Lb/Hr} \times 2$$

GALLONS PER HOUR TO HORSEPOWER:

$$HP = \text{GPH} \times 12.5$$

LITRES PER HOUR TO HORSEPOWER:

$$HP = \text{L/Hr} \times 3.273$$

GALLONS PER HOUR TO POUNDS PER HOUR:

$$\text{Lb/Hr} = \text{GPH} \times 6.25$$

POUNDS PER HOUR TO CC PER MINUTE:

$$CC/\text{Min} = \text{Lb/Hr} \times 10.5$$

GRAMS PER MINUTE TO CC PER MINUTE:

$$CC = \text{Grams/Min} \times 1.297$$

RPM TO SPEED

Use this formula to calculate your speed at a given RPM or your RPM at a given speed. The tyre diameter should be entered in inches and the gear ratio is the diff ratio multiplied by the gear ratio or just the diff ratio for a 1:1 top gear. To calculate in MPH use 336 instead of 209.

$$KPH = \frac{(RPM \times \text{Tyre Diam.})}{(\text{Gear Ratio} \times 209)} \quad RPM = \frac{(KPH \times \text{Gear Ratio} \times 209)}{\text{Tyre Diam.}} \quad \text{Tyre Diam} = \frac{(KPH \times \text{Gear Ratio} \times 209)}{RPM}$$

ENGINE CAPACITY

This formula works in metric or imperial. If you enter the bore and stroke in Inches you will get the capacity of one cylinder in cubic inches (swept volume) and if you enter the bore and stroke in Centimetres you will get the capacity in CC. Then multiply by the number of cylinders.

$$\text{Swept Vol.} = \text{Bore} \times \text{Bore} \times \text{Stroke} \times .7854$$

ENGINE CAPACITY CC (Bore & Stroke in Inches)

This formula gives you the volume of the one cylinder in CC (swept volume) when you enter the bore and stroke in inches. You can use the volume of one cylinder to calculate compression ratio or multiply by the number of cylinders to find the engine capacity.

$$\text{Swept Vol.} = \text{Bore} \times \text{Bore} \times \text{Stroke} \times 12.8703$$

COMPRESSION RATIO

To calculate the compression ratio, divide the volume at BDC by the volume at TDC. The volume at TDC is the volume of the combustion chamber plus the head gasket and piston dish (or minus piston dome). The volume at BDC is the TDC volume plus the volume of the cylinder (swept volume). To find the swept volume in CC, use the formula above for engine capacity but this time do not multiply by the number of cylinders. In the example below we will calculate the compression ratio for a 383 stroker (4.030" bore x 3.750" stroke) with 64cc combustion chambers, a 9cc head gasket and a 12cc dish piston.

$$\text{Swept Vol.} = \text{Bore} \times \text{Bore} \times \text{Stroke} \times 12.8703$$

$$\text{Compression Ratio} = \frac{\text{TDC Vol} + \text{Swept Vol}}{\text{TDC Vol}}$$

Example: 4.030 Bore x 3.750" Stroke with 64cc Chamber, 12cc Dish & 9cc Head Gasket

1. Swept Volume: $4.030 \times 4.030 \times 3.750 \times 12.8703 = 783.8447cc$
2. TDC Volume: $64 + 9 + 12 = 85cc$
3. BDC Volume: $783.8447 + 85 = 868.8447cc$
4. Compression Ratio: $\frac{783.8447 + 85}{85} = 10.221$

INJECTOR SIZING

To calculate injector size you need to know how much horsepower your engine makes and divide by the number of injectors to find horsepower per injector. The formula below assumes a brake specific horsepower of 0.5 and injector duty cycle of 80%. Use the reverse formula to calculate the horsepower rating of an injector from it's flow rate.

To calculate injector size:

$$\text{Lb/Hr} = \frac{HP}{1.6} \quad CC = \frac{HP}{0.1523}$$

$$\text{To calculate Horsepower: } HP = \text{Lb/Hr} \times 1.6$$

$$HP = CC \times 0.1523$$

HORSEPOWER TO TORQUE

This formula shows the relationship between power, torque and RPM. If you know how much torque you are making at a given RPM you can calculate horsepower and if you know the horsepower you can calculate torque.

$$HP = \frac{RPM \times \text{Lb/Ft}}{5252} \quad \text{Lb/Ft} = \frac{HP \times 5252}{RPM}$$
